

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

I want to understand scrum better. I have worked slightly with it in the past, but I have forgotten a lot. I also want to learn how to make the most out of sprints.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

As this is the first week of the project course I haven't really gotten the opportunity to help anyone. However, I do want to get better at helping people in general. I will do this by attempting to show up and be active at all the meetings so I can have a brief understanding about what everyone is working with, which in turn will allow me to be more helpful towards my group members as I know what they are working with.

- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

We haven't really gotten far enough with our project to have worked with scrum as a group. Personally however, I can help contribute to the team's scrum usage by taking this time to learn scrum better so that when we actually start working with it I will have a decent understanding about it.

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

We are at a very early stage of our project, so the only contribution I have done so far is setting up a repo for our group so that we could hand in our social contract.
